REMINISCENCE CENTRE

FROM STRENGTH TO STRENGTH

The Reminiscence Centre has had an excellent year with a considerable increase in numbers using it and in income from it. The exhibitions have improved in quality and variety with the advent of our Development Workers, and the Visits by elderly people’s groups have been well run and highly enjoyable.

CROSSING THE AGE DIVIDE

Visits by schools groups concentrating on a theme which is relevant to their particular curriculum study is an area we hope to develop further in the years ahead, since there is considerable interest. We should also like to develop closer links with three or four very local schools so that a continuing project can be developed.

NEW SKILLS FOR THE VOLUNTEERS

The Theatre in Education shows have meant that our volunteers have had a very busy time working with the children in addition to their normal voluntary activities. We now plan to set up an education group made up of volunteers who are interested in working with children, supported by Age Exchange staff.

Many volunteers are taking a more active role in the Centre and in the offices upstairs, helping to press cuttings, files, figure work, mail outs, helping with school visits and even running visiting groups themselves.

DARKROOM PROJECT

A great deal of progress has been made on the darkroom over the last year. What was once an unusable area with very poor access and years of accumulated dross, has been opened up into a light and clean space with disabled ramps giving access to different areas. We are now trying to raise the necessary funds to complete the darkroom conversion, and will press ahead as soon as possible.

REGULAR GROUPS

The regular reminiscence and music groups held in the Centre have been well attended. The Reminiscence Group brought out their book or memories and photos, 'A Day at the Fair' and launched it at the Youth Theatre performance of 'Fairground' with a series of readings.

Every week several groups of elderly people visit the Reminiscence Centre, many of them wheelchair bound. Gemma Hunter, Development Worker and Eileen Taylor, Centre Worker, run reminiscence sessions for them using objects from the Centre to spark off lively discussions.
EXHIBITIONS LAUNCHED IN STYLE

The launches of various books and exhibitions have attracted large crowds. The evacuation project drew in a lot of new visitors to the Centre, and many have stayed on as volunteers and valued members of the Reminiscence Group.

MORE FOR BROWSERS TO BUY

We have greatly increased the stock we are carrying in the shop, now selling many book titles other than our own and a wider range of attractive presents with a reminiscence connection. The cafe too has become more ambitious, and the income has risen proportionately.

Caroline Osborn, Reminiscence Project Co-ordinator, talks to nurses visiting the Reminiscence Centre about Age Exchange resources.

‘MEMORY MATTERS’

The advent of the Age Exchange Newsletter, ‘Memory Matters’ has helped to put volunteers in touch with events at the Centre and out in the field, and many have contributed their own articles. This newsletter has also proved a valuable means of keeping staff and freelance workers in touch with the project.

Crowds attending the launch of the evacuation exhibition were served wartime cocoa in enamel mugs.

THE AGE EXCHANGE MINIBUS PROJECT

Over the last three years, volunteers and friends have been helping to raise money to buy a minibus with wheelchair access to bring people to the Reminiscence Centre and to enable our regular users to go out on visits.

We have now bought a second and minibus in excellent condition and it was first used to take our own volunteers down to Somerset to take part in the Reminiscence Festival. We have offered the Minibus to other community groups working with older people and disabled groups, and we are very pleased with the take-up so far. The modest fee we charge for hiring it out will cover its maintenance costs and will bring us into contact with many other groups in the area who have not previously used our services.

THEATRE IN EDUCATION

DEVELOPING LINKS WITH LOCAL SCHOOLS

In 1989-90, we consolidated our work with local schools offering two Theatre in Education programmes and a number of thematic visits involving role play. The Theatre programmes for children, in which they work with actors and older people exploring a reminiscence theme, have attracted a great deal of media attention as they are a unique Age Exchange invention. Schools have been delighted with the development, and with the high quality of follow-up work which the children have produced. This work has been displayed in the Centre, and has considerably impressed our older visitors.

Jim Hughes, a contributor to the evacuation book, helps children to explore the exhibition.

VOLUNTEERS ACTIVELY INVOLVED

The volunteers took on a new role in relation to the children, when they directed short scenes about their own lives with small groups of school children, and then showed these scenes to the rest of the class and the volunteers. People who had initially felt very unconfident about taking such an active part, had great fun and enjoyed seeing what other groups had done. This playmaking was preferable to a talking/listening exercise at the end of a long day for the children. It also meant that they really were interested to ask questions and listen to answers from the ‘experts’ at the end of the day, because they were so fully involved in the subject.

GOODNIGHT CHILDREN EVERYWHERE

Our new evacuation show ‘Goodnight Children Everywhere’ ran for two seasons in the Reminiscence Centre. This was a fully participatory show devised by Andy Andrews and Pam Schweitzer, in which the children took part in a re-enactment of the evacuation process, and then met people who had really gone through the experience fifty years ago. This show took place in a specially created war-time environment with evacuation memorabilia, war time objects, documents and letters from evacuees all helping to make this a very memorable experience for the children.

GOOD MORNING CHILDREN

We repeated our other Theatre in Education piece ‘Good Morning Children’, with the same cast as before. This time the actress playing the teacher, Illona Linthwaite, took the afternoon sessions with the older volunteers participating, and again we opted for an active session with the children dramatising the pensioners’ stories. This went very well, and we hope that these programmes, and more like them will become part of our regular repertoire.

4
ABOLITION OF ILEA

However, the abolition of ILEA in March 1990 is going to have considerable repercussions for Age Exchange. We are trying to secure some funding from the new local education authorities, but this is proving to be a difficult process as they appear to be in such turmoil. We had been receiving between £7,000 and £9,500 from ILEA over the last two years, and that support will be sorely missed. It is virtually impossible to make the shows financially viable without grant aid as the schools themselves have very limited money available for visits.

YOUTH THEATRE

LINKS WITH THE REMINISCENCE GROUP

This part of our work has gone very well this last year with a return to working on reminiscence themes and fitting in more closely with the activities of the Reminiscence Group. Two good plays have emerged, one about ‘the street where I grew up’ and one about ‘a day at the fair’. In both instances, the children read the memories of the reminiscence group, or interviewed them or watched videos of them talking in a group session, and from these memories they developed ideas.

HIGHLY VISUAL THEATRE

Well directed by Julian Waite, and later by Jeremy Allerton, they came up with some delightful ideas, highly visual and very imaginative. They worked through their half term holidays on set painting and prop production, and both shows were a great success in spite of some last minute panics! The readings by the Reminiscence Group before the shows were a very important part of the events, and many parents said how much they liked this development. The ‘Fairground’ show coincided with the exhibition on the same theme in the Centre and the launch of our fair book.

ACROSS THE IRISH SEA

We started the year with a tour of our Irish play, 'Across the Irish Sea', which now had an accompanying book to go with it, and we paid an enjoyable and rewarding visit to Northern Ireland. The book sold well, and the show was much appreciated. There is a good chance that it will be resuscitated if sufficient funding can be attracted. There is considerable interest from Dublin where there is a chance of some European money to support a tour in 1991. As the book has now completely sold out, we would also need to raise the money for a reprint.

ON THE RIVER

'On The River' had an excellent second tour, this time also with the new publication available. The soft back edition sold out very fast, especially to the river fraternity, and the hard back copies of the book have been selling steadily ever since. The actors worked extremely well on this tour, and they all came back for two further weeks of touring this July (1990) as part of the Docklands Festival.

Janine Elton, Rob Sturt and Andy Andrews in "On The River", which has played to thousands of Londoners over the last eighteen months, reminding them of the heyday of the Thames as a working river.

MANY HAPPY RETIREMENTS

'Many Happy Retirements' has continued to play to pre-retirement groups across the country as part of seminars run by firms and financial consultants. It earns a steady income and we hope to increase its use next year. Pam Lyne, one of the actors involved, has done some excellent promotional work on the project, and we are finding that the take-up by large firms running their own pre-retirement courses has been very enthusiastic.

CHRISTMAS AT WAR

'Christmas At War' was a new show devised by Andy Andrews and Pam Schweitzer from memories collected in the Reminiscence Centre. We had a very good response to this show about Londoners during a Christmas breather in the middle of the 1940-41 Blitz. There was an excellent cast, who worked exceptionally well with the audiences, taking proper time to talk to them after the shows and creating a really good atmosphere wherever they went. We shall be reviving this show for Christmas 1990, if possible with the same cast, and we hope to be taking it to Germany.

AGE EXCHANGE BOOKS

This has really been a books year for Age Exchange, with two very ambitious books launched, and several smaller ones in the last few months.

ACROSS THE IRISH SEA

'Across The Irish Sea', published in April 1989, has completely sold out, and we are currently trying to raise the money for a reprint.

ON THE RIVER

'On The River', our book of memories of the docks and of the Thames as a working River, was published in June 1989, and sold very well during its 1989 tour. We have sold out of our paperback stock, but we still have a large stock of the hardbacks, and we have already virtually recouped our production costs.

A PRACTICAL GUIDE TO REMINISCENCE

'A Practical Guide To Reminiscence' produced by Caroline Osborn, is already popular with visitors to the Centre who cannot afford a copy of 'Lifetimes' (our big reminiscence pack) but who are keen to pick up a few essentials. It is a simple basic guide to starting reminiscence, and a lot of people are ordering it through our mail order service. Caroline has another small scale book of ideas in the pipeline, which we hope to launch in 1991-92.

WHEN WE WERE YOUNG

'When We Were Young' is the new Somerset book arising from our West Country project. It is both a record of that project and a delightful collection of rural memories. It was produced in association with South Somerset District Council who paid for its printing costs and who are very happy with the result. We hope to be able to sell it to rural groups through our mailing service, but also we hope to continue our West Country work and promote the book where it will obviously be most popular.

GOODNIGHT CHILDREN EVERYWHERE

The evacuation book, 'Goodnight Children Everywhere', which we launched at the Imperial War Museum in May 1990, was even bigger as a publishing project, with over 200 pages and about two hundred photos. The response to this book has been extremely positive so far, and we are hopeful that ultimately it will more than earn its keep.

A DAY AT THE FAIR

'A Day At The Fair' was produced by the Reminiscence Group at the Centre to coincide with the exhibition around that theme and the Youth Theatre play 'Fairground'. It is a cheap and highly readable little book which we hope will sell well over the years and appeal particularly to local people as it concentrates on the Blackheath Fair. It is selling well in the local history libraries and at local events.

THE SOMERSET PROJECT

This was a one-year project in which two Age Exchange coordinators (part time) worked with local groups in five villages developing reminiscence, and working towards a Reminiscence Festival at Dillington House, near Ilminster in Somerset.

MAKING CONTACTS AND BUILDING CONFIDENCE

Working closely with the South Somerset District Council and the local community arts group, Take Art, we established links with five villages, Chard, Ilminster, Somerton, South Petherton and Wincanton, and set up training days in reminiscence for local group leaders who were willing to work with us on the project.

After a fairly slow start, while these local team leaders built up their own skills and confidence, there was a great upsurge in energy and commitment from all the village groups. Having a festival to work towards was a crucial ingredient here, and all the groups began to sense that they could achieve.

CROSS-GENERATIONAL WORK

Two groups worked closely with village school children to produce reminiscence plays like our own Youth Theatre shows, and learnt an enormous amount in the process. In both these cases, the work across the generations will definitely continue and flourish as a result.

HARVEST MEMORIES

A group of residents in another old people’s home produced a book of stories and also did some valuable education work on the theme of harvest with their local primary school. A Day Centre for elderly people with special needs also joined in the project, and particularly enjoyed the outings which resulted, especially to the festival itself, where they had a really good time.

Hot off the press, the Somerset memories in “When We Were Young” are snapped up at the Reminiscence Festival.

Crowds of elderly people came from all over South Somerset on a glorious sunny day and enjoyed a Festival lunch in the open air.

A DAY TO REMEMBER
Our co-ordinators, Sarah Clevely and Paul Swatridge, worked very hard to make the festival a success, which it undoubtedly was. There were two hundred people attending, from children to the very elderly (several in their nineties). The book was launched by Pamela Anderson, the Chair of Arts and Leisure for the South Somerset District Council who expressed great delight at the work of Age Exchange in the area, and it is highly likely that we will be invited back to do further work.

OTHER OUTREACH WORK

ISLE OF WIGHT
Pam Schweitzer undertook some support work with sixth form pupils from Ryde High School on the Isle of Wight. The invitation came from Carol Martys, director of Independent Arts, based on the island, following her experience of reminiscence arts on our training courses in London.

The young people wanted to include reminiscence theatre in their examination submission. They took their work with old people in residential homes very seriously, and produced a really first class piece of drama based on the memories they collected. Their work gave pleasure to large numbers of elderly people on the island.

"Soapsud Island" performed by Questors Theatre Ealing, following training with Age Exchange in Reminiscence Theatre.

QUESTORS THEATRE EALING
Pam ran another training course for members of Questors Theatre who wanted to explore reminiscence theatre following a visit to one of our Youth Theatre shows at the Reminiscence Centre. They set up a project entitled Playback Theatre, using the same techniques as Age Exchange, and produced a marvellous show called Soapsud Island based on local people's memories of working in the Acton laundries before the war. This show was widely toured, bringing pleasure to many older people. The Playback Theatre group at Questors are very excited about this method of working, and they are going on to produce another show next year, exploring a different theme.

REMINISCENCE PROJECT

The Project has worked very steadily during the last year with a small group of reminiscence workers who are now very experienced. The spread of placements remains wide geographically, within the greater London area, and ranges from day centres for the elderly to long stay and special provision for mentally frail old people.

The CPA monitoring report recommended some administrative changes which have been implemented. We now also return to each location approximately three months after the end of the initial placement. This gives us a valuable insight into the longer term ability of staff to maintain the approaches which we have developed with them. On return visits, we frequently find that staff are working well in very difficult circumstances. We can offer them new ideas or confirm that what they are doing is good and appropriate.

There were twenty-five placements between April 1989 and July 1990, and six placements are in prospect for the early autumn.

THE REMINISCENCE BOXES

The Reminiscence Boxes were launched by Mary Stott with an enjoyable flourish in May. Putting them together was a time consuming task. Each box contains fifteen to twenty carefully considered objects, some laminated pictures, and extensive ideas notes. The boxes currently cover nine topics and we have made duplicates of most of them.

The initial publicity stimulated a great deal of interest, including eighty enquiries following a radio broadcast. There have been teething problems with the packaging which we hope have been solved, and the administration is time-consuming. Twenty-seven loans have been made since May which is gratifying.

TRAINING

NEW COURSES

We have had a very active training programme this year. We started running two and three day courses, often including a follow-up day after three months, and these longer courses are run in parallel with our single day courses. The special course in working through reminiscence with mentally frail old people has been popular, and we intend to run it more frequently.

AGE EXCHANGE OUTREACH TRAINING SERVICES IN GREAT DEMAND

We have also been commissioned to run workshops and training sessions outside the Centre for local authorities, health authorities, housing associations, institute of higher education, training consortia and arts organisations.
FINANCIAL REPORT

INCOME AND EXPENDITURE ACCOUNT

Turnover exceeded £73,000 million and was up 37% on the previous year. Although there was a small deficit of £23,362 on the year's activity, this was after making a provision of £14,369 for expenditure on future work. Grant funding increased considerably on previous year and self-generated income was up by 40%.

As a result of Age Exchange's expanding areas of work, expenditure increased significantly under a number of cost headings, notably in salaries and wages due to an increased level of staffing, in advertising and publicity due to the work of the newly created post of Publicity Officer, in book printing costs due to the launch of three new titles and in consultancy which was fully funded by a grant from B.P.

BALANCE SHEET

This shows the company in a sound financial position at 31st March 1990, with net assets amounting to £40,443 though it should be borne in mind that the company still relies on grant funding for its continued existence.

On capital account, the company spent £10,129 on improvements to premises — mainly disabled access to the darkroom — all of which was fully funded by grants.

Building the disabled access ramp to the darkroom.

FUTURE PLANS

Forthcoming events and projects are as follows:

SHOWS:

DEAR MUM, a one man show on evacuation by Andy Andrews, touring in the autumn.

CHRISTMAS AT WAR, a revival of last year's popular Christmas show to mark the 50th anniversary of the Blitz.

JUST LIKE THE COUNTRY, our long-awaited show on the inter-war housing estates, will tour after Christmas. We are giving priority to book promotion in the coming months.

YOUTH THEATRE SHOW on local theme.

EXHIBITIONS:

HARVEST THEME. We shall bring the Age Exchange Somerset exhibition to the Reminiscence Centre, and also a new Shropshire exhibition of rural memories and photographs which was inspired by Age Exchange work.

BOOKS:

JUST LIKE THE COUNTRY will be published in the autumn.

BLITZ, a new book of memories by the Age Exchange Reminiscence Group will be launched in the autumn to commemorate the Blitz and to go out with the one-man show and the Christmas show.

PRIORITIES FOR 1990-91

We must give priority to the marketing and distribution of our books this year, and recoup the money we have laid out on publications this year.

We must also take steps to document the work of Age Exchange. Apart from the Reminiscence Project, on which the Centre for Policy on Ageing produced a most positive and helpful report, our work has not been fully recorded, documented or evaluated. Of course there are our own publications, all twenty of them by the end of this financial year, and there has been a great deal of media coverage one way and another, but a more detailed study of the work of the Trust is overdue, and we shall try to ensure that it happens in the coming year.

WE NEED YOUR SUPPORT

Increasingly our work for elderly people depends on individual and corporate donations and legacies.

Please consider a regular gift to Age Exchange. A covenant will enable us to reclaim basic income tax on your gift, making it worth more to our work.

You can also help us regularly through payroll giving. We are registered to receive payments via the Charities Aid Foundation.

Or you may prefer to make a single donation to help us with our work.

For more details on how you can help us contact:
